

Editorial

Dear readers,

As of this month our journal Netherlands Journal of Geosciences / Geologie en Mijnbouw is also digitally available at the new, own, webpage: www.njgonline.nl. To consult the full-text articles, members of the KNGMG and subscribers to the journal will still require a login code and password. These data will be soon forwarded to you by the KNGMG secretary.

This milestone in the history of NJG is a logical consequence of the world-wide development in the field of electronic publishing. Both the NJG Foundation and the Editorial Board have decided to ask Igitur Utrecht Publishing and Archiving Services to realize the digital publication of our journal. This is a newly formed unit of the Utrecht University Library which supports electronic publishing by scientists. Igitur guarantees rapid publication, good exposure and world-wide availability.

Furthermore, we have selected the new printer-office Giethoorn Ten Brink in Meppel. They will print our journal in full color. Our new technical editor Jos Rietstap designed a new cover and format which resulted in this attractive and rejuvenated issue. Jos Rietstap is also in charge of the pre-press digital layout of the issues so that the entire printing process, including correction of proofs will be boosted.

Both Foundation and Editorial Board have done their utmost to make the change to a financially sound and attractive journal. Now we are counting on you to submit your manuscripts to us!
